Construction projects have a history of contractual disputes and conflicts. These problems have reduced the efficiency and profitability of property development.

Many construction projects end up in disputes which could be very costly in time, effort, and money for all parties directly involved and affected. These could range from construction defects, delays, worksite accidents, variation in plans, non-compliance to building code and other regulations, payment issues, etc. Conflicts and costly litigation could be avoided when the parties have a well-crafted and comprehensively defined construction contract. Language is everything.

Enroll in this 3-session training and let our subject matter expert and construction law practitioner navigate you in perfecting that construction contract from bidding or negotiation, pre-construction to completion and project turnover.

Whether you're a seasoned professional or new to the construction industry, this training will surely benefit you. Enroll!
